NEMRUT & COMMAGENE

There are certain places in the world, where sunrise or sunset turns into a ceremony. Mount Nemrut is one of them.

The Kingdom of Commagene's most lasting visible remains is the archaeological site on Mount Nemrut. The sanctuary dedicated by King Antiochus is listed on the World Heritage Site list.

The huge stone heads on the summit of Mount Nemrut were built by King Antiochus, who ruled the Commagene kingdom between 64 and 38 BC.

Join our tour to witness the most fascinating sunrise and sunset view in your life, between the colossal size statues and heads of the kings and Gods.

To glorify his rule, King Antiochus had three enormous terraces (east, west and north) cut into the mountaintop. Colossal statues of himself and the major gods (both Greek and Persian) of the kingdom were placed on the terraces, and the summit became a sanctuary where the king was worshipped. Today's visitors can still see the remains of the east and west terraces (not much is left of the north terrace).

Your guide will tell you the story of Theresa Goell, known as "the quine of the mountain", the American archaeologist who directed Mount Nemrut's excavations.
